Mélange

Newsletter-1

February, 2021

♥ From Editors' Desk

We, the editorial board take immense pleasure to bring to you our very first edition of scholars' newsletter, "Mélange"! At this special moment, we would like to thank a few important people who are the driving force behind this. We express our overwhelming gratitude to Prof. R Radhakrishna, Chairman of CESS for being the constant inspiration for all of us. We thank, the captain of our ship, the Director of CESS, Prof. E Revathi, for trusting us with this responsibility. Our guiding light, Dr. K Alivelu, Dean of DGS, for always showing us the right path. Mr. Jadhav Chakradhar, Academic coordinator, DGS for hanging in there with us through the thick and thin. Last but not the least, Dr. Y Srinivasulu, Academic coordinator, DGS, Mr. Venkataiah, and, Ms. Parveen Begum, the team DGS, for their relentless support.

The Mélange, explores our (the Ph.D. scholars of CESS) pursuits. It includes, mainly the academic and non-academic activities that we engage in. The newsletter brings into the spotlight our publications, research activities, recognitions and other important activities. Mélange is very special for the editorial team, as we feel privileged to be part of this exciting yet perplexing journey of turning this idea into reality. Also, as we wanted to make the design of the Newsletter to be unique, we decided it to be the hand painted version of the signature beauties of CESS; The Cherry blossom trees and Peahens. We hope, this is the beginning of Mélange's long and prosperous voyage. And, we wish you a very happy and safe new year 2021.

♥ Director's Message

My heart fills with joy to write these few words for the newsletter brought out by our PhD students and scholars. The PhD programme in collaboration with Telangana University, young in age, has now taken firm roots and just begun to bloom. The arduous task of carrying out research requires to be interspersed with other creative activities. As we have a sizable number of students and scholars it makes way for unleashing of their talent and enrich learning in multiple ways. The Mélange provides a platform to showcase the achievements, in academic, literary, sports and culture and in many other ways. I congratulate all of you for bringing this newsletter and look forward to see the PhD scholars of CESS to bloom to the fullest capacity.
